Taylor '42 Is Elected President

Student Union Decides On 1941-42 Official Slate Wednesday

VIRGINIA I. WYNN '43 IS VICE-PRESIDENT

Alice Taylor '42 was elected president of Student Union for the coming year at the organization's meeting last Wednesday evening. The entire staff of 1941-1942 officers were elected at that time, and further plans for the Union reorganization were discussed.

Patricia L. Kane '42 was elected chief justice; Virginia I. Wynn '43, vice-president; Elisabeth vonThurn '43, secretary; Eleanor L. Dickie '42, treasurer; and Charlotte H. Johnson, assistant treasurer. This new governing board will be installed on April 23.

Investigations Continue

The committee which has been investigating the assembly system and other forms of representative government was split into three units at the last meeting, in order that the first draft of a new constitution may be more quickly worked out. One committee will further investigate representative systems, another will study dormitory organization, and a third, led by Virginia I. Wynn '43, will report for the entire group and submit a constitution in nucleus form.

Heading the committee of investigation is Barbara York '42, assisted by Jane F. Giblin '42, Helen S. Haldt '43, and Grace Litchfield '44. They will talk with Prof. Walter T. Bogart concerning government organization. Mary D. Sparks '44 is chairman of the committee which will make rules for the organization of women's dormitories. Assisting her are Nancy H. Rindfusz '42, Barbara A. Counsell '43, and Nettie J. Allebach '44.

New System Suggested

A system of house-meetings is expected to be more efficient and to arouse more interest than the mass meetings have in the past. However, mass meetings will not be substituted entirely, since special meetings will be for the whole women's college. Each dormitory will have a complete organization, with a proportioned number of representatives. It is felt that more discussion will be possible with students meeting in small groups.

The legislative committee, composed of the presidents of the class organizations and clubs, selected the original three members of the committee to study government in the men's assembly of the Undergraduate association and in the New England women's colleges. In the Student Union meeting of last week it was decided that this group should continue their work and enlarge it for more detailed work.

DORMITORY BOARD SUGGESTED TO FILL PLACE OF PRESENT PROCTOR SYSTEM

In order to promote and develop more responsibility among the occupants of the men's dormitories at Middlebury College, the committee considering this problem recommends that:

1. The Proctor System which is now in operation be abolished, and be replaced by a Dormitory Council.

2. Following room drawing during the Spring term, the Speaker of the House, with the consent and two-thirds vote of members of the Assembly, appoint from each floor a man (from one of the two upper classes, who is in good academic standing and who will be expected to return the following year) who is to be a resident of that dormitory during the coming academic year. The consent of the appointed man must be secured before the selection takes effect. The appointed men will constitute a Dormitory Council pro tempore during the following fall term, until the election of the representatives to the Men's Student Assembly.

3. The President of the Undergraduate association and his council, collaborate with the appointed members (pro tempore) in each dormitory as to matters of general student concern, until after elections have taken place for the Men's Student Assembly.

4. After the elections for the Men's Student Assembly, those elected representatives in each dormitory will constitute a permanent Dormitory Council in that dormitory. This council will concern itself with all matters of discipline, traditions, customs, etc., for the remainder of the academic year, within the dormitory.

a. The representatives composing the council in their dormitory shall elect a chairman, in whom will be vested the authority to call and conduct meetings.

5. That the stipend which is now received by the proctors appointed by the Dean be transferred to some form of scholarship—which would be given to those possessing the same characteristics for which the remuneration is now given.

Change of Vermont Scholarship Made

Outstanding Applicants To Receive Full Tuition For Former School Records

Under a revised plan of awarding the Vermont scholarships, six outstanding Vermont men will receive full tuition, or three hundred and fifty dollars, each year, instead of the former ten awards of one thousand dollars for four years.

These new arrangements increasing the total scholarship to fourteen hundred dollars were approved last Saturday by the Prudential committee of the college Board of Trustees. This plan will become effective immediately, but in view of this change the time limit for the receipt of applications has been extended until May first instead of the former April 15.

Male residents of the state of Vermont who are candidates for membership in the freshman class entering Middlebury College in September, 1941, will be eligible to compete for these larger awards. According to present plans, those seeking the scholarships will come to Middlebury on May 12 for the regular interviews and pyschological tests given by the committee on selections.

These awards are based, as formerly, on the general plan of the Rhodes scholarships. Included in this is a consideration of the applicant's qualities of manhood, force of character, and leadership; his literary and scholastic attainments; and physical vigor, as shown in interest in outdoor sports or in other ways.

Poet's Sister Will Give Benefit Talk

Student Union To Sponsor Poetic Interpretation By Olive Lindsay Wakefield

Mrs. Olive Lindsay Wakefield, Vachel Lindsay's sister, will speak here on Tuesday, April 22, at 8:15 in Mead Chapel. Her lecture is an event sponsored by the social committee of the Student Union and will be a benefit for the New England Christian Committee for Refugees.

A close companion of "the most American of American poets", Olive Lindsay Wakefield will read her brother's poetry. Her interpretations of his songs have been lauded in many quarters. Her impression on a Maine audience was such that they credited her with "giving her audience the poetic understanding of a great modern poet."

Both graduates of Hiram college, the Lindsays planned their life work together. Vachel Lindsay held the hope that his sister would be trained at dramatic school as a public reader; he was to write the poems for her to read. However, during the absence of his sister, who lived in China for many years, the poet read his own works all over the country. Many people from varied walks of life are acquainted with his symphonic poems, "Congo" and "The Chinese Nightingale." These poems which have been classed by anthologists as belonging to the "chant" school.

Besides reading the poems in the proper chant form, as they are intended to be rendered, Olive Lindsay Wakefield in addition interprets their origin and explains the source of her brother's inspiration in writing his poetry.

College To Hear Views Of John Mason Brown

John Mason Brown

Well Known Drama Critic To Cover Broadway In Address

LECTURE WILL BE TOMORROW NIGHT

Returning to Middlebury for the sixth consecutive year, John Mason Brown, dramatic critic of the New York Evening Post, will lecture April 17 in Mead Memorial chapel on his usual subject, "Broadway in Review."

Noted for his humorous and sharply critical impressions of the New York stage, Mr. Brown once said that the tendency of critics was "to show no mercy to the people of the theatre, but to have an infinite faith in the theatre itself." From his earliest recollections, according to Mr. Brown, he has loved the theatre and he now is considered one of its sturdiest defenders.

Varied Career

Mr. Brown's career as a drama critic began while he was a student in George Pierce Baker's Drama Workshop at Harvard university, when he wrote his first reviews for that institution's publication, the "Crimson". At Harvard he was president of the dramatic club, edited a volume of miracle plays, as well as acting and directing from time to time.

In 1929 after serving as associate editor and dramatic critic of Theatre Arts Monthly and having been director of the dramatic department of the summer school of the University of Montana, he was appointed to his present position of drama critic of the New York Evening Post. Since then, in addition to his work on the Post, he has written several books on the theatre and has given numerous lectures on the subject.

Extensive Lectures

Courses in play writing, the history of the modern theatre, and the history of criticism are included in the curriculum offered by Mr. Brown during the past three summers at Harvard university. He has also taught at the New York Laboratory Theatre, the Bread Loaf Writers' conference, Columbia and Yale universities.

Devoting a large proportion of his time to lecture tours, Mr. Brown estimates that during the past year he has traveled over 25,000 miles, giving on the average of 125 talks a season on current productions and stage personalities. During the past year, he spoke at Town Hall in New York fourteen times.

Speaking of John Mason Brown, the drama critic of the New York Times, J. Brooks Atkinson, says, "From every point of view John Mason Brown is an ideal dramatic critic. As the critic of the New York Evening Post he discusses every day the merchantable goods of Broadway. But he is also a scholar; he knows the history of the stage, the technique of acting and producing, the art of stage decor; and his books disclose a mastery of the entire subject."

Wright, Hayden Appoint Senior Week Leaders

Co-chairmen for Senior Week, Vernon M. Wright '41 and Frances-Jane Hayden '41 have appointed co-chairmen of the committees in charge of class day, publicity, the senior ball and tree planting.

Walter D. Knight '41 and Janet E. Sutliffe '41 will act as co-chairmen of the committee in charge of class day. Lawrence M. Warner '41 and Mildred E. Becker '41 will head the publicity committee, and Frederick G. Butler '41 and Elizabeth F. Wolfington '41 will be co-chairmen of the committee in charge of the senior ball. Co-chairmen of the committee arranging for the tree planting will be John W. Holt '41 and Jean L. Connor '41.

The publicity committee under Warner and Miss Becker have arranged to send to the L. G. Balfour Co. for information concerning announcements and programs.

Appointments to these committees are expected to be made during next week. Members of these committees are chosen by the committe co-chairmen with the advice of the Senior Week co-chairmen, Wright and Miss Hayden.

In planning the class day exercises, the class day committee will pick members of the senior class to write and deliver the class prophecy, the class history, the class will and oration.

Debating Team To Meet N.Y.U. Over Air Waves

Middlebury's men's debating team will hold a radio debate with New York university and will also meet Drew university during a trip which will take place during the last part of this month.

The debate with New York university will be held Sunday afternoon, April 27. The contest will be broadcast over station WINS. The question for debate has not yet been announced. John D. Connor '41 and Charles Pressman '44 will represent Middlebury.

On April 28 the team will oppose Drew university's squad in the question, "Resolved: That the nations of the Western hemisphere should form a permanent union." Leroy F. Hovey '41 and Kyle T. Brown '42 will uphold the affirmative of this question for Middlebury. The Oregon style of debate will be used, thus allowing main speeches and questioning, and a decision will be handed down by three judges.

Prof. Perley C. Perkins states that there is a strong possibility of also having a debate with Colgate university. Preliminary arrangements are under way, and if Middlebury meets Colgate, the contest will come sometime before the two scheduled debates.

All Draft Age Students To Fill Questionnaires From Vermont Board

Questionaires regarding possible student deferment at the completion of the present deferment law have been handed the Dean's office by the Vermont State Selective Service board. The questionaires will be distributed sometime next week to all men, who come within the draft age. They are to be filled out and handed back to the Dean's office as soon as possible.

There are, under present law, no groups of deferments, after the present one now granted, and it is with this intent in mind that the local boards want to obtain information regarding student status. The questionaires, for students within draft age only, will make it possible for the local draft boards to arrive at a fair and reasonable decision in the case of each student. These questionaires will be sent to the state headquarters with a complete statement of ability and aptitude.

President Paul D. Moody Interviewed Upon Returning to Middlebury Today

By Mary E. Clough '42

Although President Paul D. Moody's return to Middlebury was not expected until next June, he found that the proposed changes in faculty and student enrollment would probably necessitate his presence at the college. When interviewed this morning at his office, President Moody said that he was still available to the army for consultant and advisory service.

Speaking of Middlebury, he said that the college enrollment at the present time was greater than expected, yet the students would probably see a difference in the enrollment next fall. The selective service and the opportunity for better jobs in the defense industries would probably cause the difference. President Moody said that he thought all colleges would feel this change.

Speaking of the present war, President Moody claimed that the United States was "virtually at war" at the present time. He referred to Secretary Stimson's speech before the special Senate defense committee, and said it was one of the most realistic interpretations of the situations that he had heard. In President Moody's opinion, the sending of an expeditionary force to Europe would clarify the "ambiguous situation" in which the U. S. now finds itself.

Referring to the selective service work, President Moody said he did not believe that the men called at the present for a year would be held for longer than that, although the modern requirements of warfare called for more than a year's training. He also said after the present system of selective service had completed its five year term, a systematic plan of conscription would be put into force.

President Moody has returned for the remainder of the college year and probably next year. He said that he was interested in the number of college presidents who were giving full or part time to the job of defense work. He referred to his opinions expressed last fall in his opening address and said that many of his predictions at that time had since come true.

MOVE TO DISBAND APPROVED FRIDAY BY ENGLISH CLUB

End of the English club as a campus organization is foreseen following a disbandment resolution passed unanimously at last Friday afternoon's meeting in the Vermont room of the library.

President Malcolm Freiberg '41, in presenting the reasons for the resolution, emphasized the fact that the faults were inherent, that they rested upon the shoulders of no officer or officers, that the blame rested upon no one individual. He showed clearly that the attendance and interest in the aims and purposes of the club had declined steadily in the past few years. He said, "In late years its functions have been largely nominal and its chief claim to life, namely the promotion of worthwhile literary activities, has not been achieved".

In advancing the resolution, Freiberg also stressed the fact that it must be approved by the Men's assembly before it goes into effect.

FRANK STATEMENTS

Since the invasion of France last spring the world has been under an intense feeling of uncertainty and insecurity. Like every other institution of American society our colleges have had their share of speculation over the future. As college men, we have found ourselves in the peculiar position of trying to do justice to our academic work, watch each new European crisis, and at the same time, wonder how our immediate future would be effected by conscription. After basing our guesses as to the future on conflicting rumors for many months, a direct and authoritative statment would seem welcome.

Last week just such an authoritative statement was made. It came from the Deputy Director of the Selective Service, General Lewis Hershey. Speaking before the International Student Service at Yale university he said, "I do not think that there is anything sacred about a college education . . . going to school because you have nothing else to do is last year's hat". Most of us feel that such an opinion is based on pre-depression ideas. Few spend the time and money to go to college for the lack of anything better to do. But indelicate and blunt as it may have been, General Hershey's statement should go far in clarifying our status in the national defense program.

By now it has become apparent that the army considers the utility value to be realized from higher education, with the exception of technical training, not great enough to warrant any further exemption for college men. We may hold altogether different views on the matter than those men who are directing the national defense in Washington. But we must remember that theirs is the short range view, influenced by the necessity of the situation and the swift movement of European armies.

Whether we agree or not, this seems to be one of the first frank and honest statements as to what the policy of the Selective Service will be with regard to college men. General Hershey did not use pretenses. He did not try to evade the issue by telling us that a year in the army will be the best thing in the world for us or that what college men need is to rub shoulders for a year. What he said carried none of that implication that army training would be just the thing to cure the ills of our soft academic life. It is an emergency situation for all of us and whether we like the manner in which he expressed himself or not, he was frank and he did not becloud the issue.

College patriotism is definitely not of the flag waving-God Bless America type. It is a brand of patriotism that admits of little but reality. But it is no less sincere. Better than any other class of people college men will realize just what they are serving for and what they may expect when the emergency has passed. —D. F. S.

"Messiah" Given At Vesper Services

Choir and Choral Societies Combine with Orchestra For Easter Presentation

As an appropriate service for Easter Sunday, the combined choir and choral society, accompanied by the Middlebury College orchestra, sang excerpts from Handel's "Messiah" at vespers last Sunday afternoon. Prof. H. Ward Bedford directed the choirs and the orchestra in their performance of the Easter portion of the familiar oratorio.

The choirs sang seven choruses and four soloists did six arias. Included in the choral selections were "Behold the Lamb of God," "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs," "And With His Stripes We are Healed," "All We Like Sheep," "Lift Up Your Heads," "Worthy Is the Lamb," and the well-known "Hallelujah" chorus.

Miss Dorothy Briggs sang "He Was Despised," an aria for a contralto voice. Miss Mary L. Eimer '42 was to have done "How Beautiful Are the Feet," but a three weeks case of laryngitis prevented her from singing on Sunday.

"Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart" and "Behold and See," two arias for tenor, were sung by Charles H. Kitchell '42. Walter D. Knight '41 did two bass arias, "Why Do the Nations So Furiously Rage" and "The Trumpet Shall Sound," both of which are very difficult to sing.

The tremendous volume attained by the combining of the hundred and twenty-five voices added much to the effectiveness of the beauty and strength of emotion of the "Messiah." Handel is known more for his oratorios than for any of his other works, and the "Messiah" is among the best-known of these.

The climax of the whole service was the sun streaming through the stained glass windows of the chapel just as the choir rose to sing the "Hallelujah" chorus.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of the CAMPUS:

We pride ourselves today in sharing a common idealism with the British nation. But what do the British, the supposedly superior elements of the population at least, think about this? They appear rather reluctant to share the honour.

Mr. Grey, for thirty years editor of England's foremost aviation journal, "The Aeroplane", in remaining true to his ideals, feels called upon to refer to "The civilized world and America".

He continues, 'Some of us are so afraid that the U. S. A. will insist on coming over here and winning the war for us as they did the last time. Another twenty years of being told that America won the war would be so hard to bear."

Far be it from us to criticize. Our sacrifices were no doubt inconsequential when compared with those of the allies. In fact the gentleman's logic is so clear that we might even look for a moral in some of his later statements, which we quote.

"To order American aeroplanes of any sort is imbecility . . . We will not have the lives of British pupil pilots risked on machines which have not passed elementary safety tests."

"I have a rooted objection to having obsolete or conceivably dud American stuff planted on this country by American bluff and guff and blah and baloney."

So let's not embarrass our neighbour further with this flood of inferior and unnecessary material.

In the light of Grey's sentiments we deeply appreicate the sacrifice in the part of Great Britain to tolerate our presence among them, as they defend the Isles to serve as a base from which we and the Australians may carry on operations against the continent.

We are aware that fate is seldom so kind as to offer us a second chance to redeem ourselves in British eyes, but the facts of defensive and offensive war being what they are, we find ourselves capable of working up considerably more enthusiasm over defending our own petunia plants than aspiring to have our names inscribed on an elegant plaque in Piccadilly circus commemorating those "heroic American millions who gave up their lives to make possible etc. etc. . . "—the final Dunkerque.

Mr. Grey seems to be alone in the expression of his sentiments, for the present, but some of us are just enough of an iconoclastic turn of mind to suggest that this diversity of feeling in such a nation of tradition arises from her uncomfortable position, rather than a natural effluvium of brotherly esteem and idealism.

Charles Cotter '43

It seems fairly obvious to us that Mr. Grey was not speaking for the British nation. The whole affair sounded like the dying gasp of the once powerful Cliveden set which has been in a back seat for some time now. The stringent methods employed to prevent any more outbursts from Mr. Grey furnish excellent proof that the British government does not intend to allow traditional pride or rugged individualism to interfere with a successful defense of England.—Ed.

Dance Groups Will Give Spring Recital

"Trend," Popular Number In Last Year's Program Will Again Be Presented

Modern Dance groups of Middlebury College will present a recital on April 24 at 8:15 p. m. in the Playhouse, according to Grace M. Shailer '42, head of the group. Ten dances will be given including numbers by the sophomore and freshman dance classes.

Because of the popularity of "Trend," presented last year, that selection will be repeated. The theme of this dance represents the cycle of civilization: war, death, reliving, and war again. All of the other presentations will be new this year.

Jean D. Butterfield '42 and Doris O. Magee '43 will dance a duet to part of the third movement of "Scheherazade," while Ann A. Clark '42 and Margaret E. Woods '42 will be the central figures in a Spanish arrangement, "Bolero."

"Boogie Woogie Lilt"

The dance group has also modernized and jazzed an Irish lilt to be given under the title, "Boogie Woogie Lilt," and as a chorus number. "Pavan," the fifth presentation of the group is an early form of religious dance. Miss Butterfield, Jean E. Jordan '43, Miss Magee and Kathryn J. Sempepos '43 have prepared this piece.

Along with the regular group, the sophomore and freshman classes of modern dance are to perform. The sophomores have originated several dances, "Kid Stuff," "Dialetic," and "Cubana." "Kid Stuff," a child's viewpoint of modern dance, is under the guidance of Miss Jordan, while "Dialectic" is an interpretation of a social revolution and "Cubana," led by Miss Magee, combines the conga and rhumba.

Freshman Waltzes

A freshman class of physical education will waltz two numbers, "Viennese Waltz" and "Spirals." Eight girls, one, two, three stepping in evening clothes will signify four men and four women in the former, while the second is built around the spiral turn.

Special costumes are being made under the supervision of Miss Fern Laking and Miss Alice Bryden, who have also guided the recital itself. The regular group of Modern Dance has twice the membership this year as last. "Admission is free and all are invited to attend," announced Miss Shailer.

Patrons and patronesses for the exhibition are President and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Dean Eleanor S. Ross, Dean and Mrs. John H. Patterson, Prof. and Mrs. V. Spencer Goodreds, Mr. and Mrs. W. Storrs Lee, Prof. Clara B. Knapp, and Prof. Mary S. Rosevear.

Alumnae Council Will Meet Here on April 19

Miss Mildred Kienle '23 of Hartford, Conn., will preside at the third annual meeting of the Alumnae Council of the Middlebury Alumnae association, to be held here on April 19 and 20.

During this weekend the thirty alumnae representatives will be the guests of the college at a banquet Saturday evening in Forest hall. A program which has been arranged will include committee meetings, guest speakers and social functions, and will center about meetings in Forest recreation room all day Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

This council is composed of the association's executive committee, class delegates and delegates from the regional groups of the alumnae organization. The purpose of the Alumnae Council is to strengthen the relations between the college and its alumnae and to make recommendations for consideration to the Alumnae association at the June meeting.

The feature of the weekend will be the banquet in Forest hall this Saturday evening. A tea will also be held in the first part of next week when members will discuss various activities of alumnae since graduation.

Film Of Broadway Play To Be Shown

"Journey to Jerusalem" as Photographed on Stage Will Be Given Tuesday

A motion picture filmed during an actual performance of Maxwell Anderson's "Journey to Jerusalem" as it was given on the New York stage will be shown at the Playhouse on Tuesday, April 22. Impromptu plays presented during class periods, open to all interested members of the student body, are being worked on by dramatic classes.

There will be one or two rehearsals in order that the students may familiarize themselves with the play, and then it will be given during the next class period with all members of the cast using scripts.

Remodeled Old Chapel To Hold Faculty Offices

In a recent interview, Dr. Stephen A. Freeman, chairman of the Administrative committee, declared that Old Chapel building is undergoing extensive renovations with an eye toward the achievement of a more compact, and more integrated set of administrative offices.

Speaking in his capacity as a member of the administrations board, Dr. Freeman went on to say that perhaps the most forward of the steps now being taken was the planned shift of both the Business Manager's and the Treasurer's offices up on campus to the ground floor of Old Chapel.

According to Dr. Freeman, the office of Admissions will be moved from its present position on the ground floor of the building to a new position on the south side of the second floor. "Such a move will do much to facilitate the handling of admissions work and it is hoped that the anteroom may also be used to make more available to students the large collection of printed material on vocational guidance and placement," said Dr. Freeman.

Mr. Theodore H. Zaremba's office will be shifted down one flight, coming from the fourth to the third floor level. The offices of Prof. Harry G. Owen and Prof. Werner Neuse will both remain in their present positions on the fourth floor. Professor Owen's office has already been remodeled; his personal quarters are now in what formerly constituted Mr. Zaremba's office and the former partition dividing the outer office in two has been removed to make a larger room. Prof. William F. Madden will also make his headquarters on the fourth floor.

In an effort to preserve much of the charm and tradition of Old Chapel, it is planned to leave Old Chapel room with its paintings and plaque intact or at least relatively untouched. No decision has yet been made regarding the future of the bookstore or about the possibility of classes being held in the building in the future. However, the water and steam connections are being thoroughly overhauled, modern rest rooms are being installed on both the second and third floors, and a permanent fireproof vault is being installed on the first floor for the records of the Business Manager and the Treasurer.

These plans are all which have been released as contemplated at present

Brawny Brethren Grunt And Groan At Chapman Gym Bar-Bell Practices

Hepburn Gymnasium Now A Thriving Concern in Second Year

By William L. Hennefrund '42

"And to think that two years ago, when we started out, there was nothing. Just nothing. We started from scratch." The speaker was Donald Eugene Chapman, blond Adonis of the senior class, and for the last year or so instructor at what is commonly known as "Chapman's gymnasium," located on the fifth floor of Hepburn hall.

We took in the now-famous gymnasium with a hasty glance. We could easily see where Chapman had started from nothing. The furniture of the room began and ended with a couch. The college-owned electric light filled out the adornments.

Newest Equipment

Strolling over to a corner of the "gym," his natty tweeds wrinkled only by the steady ripple of arm and back muscles, Chapman pointed out the latest equipment in his gymnasium. "This bar-bell is doing more for the youth of America than the draft. There ought to be one in every home," he mused.

So saying, he stooped over, grabbed the bar-bell with his right hand, and after a preliminary clearing of the throat, raised the weights over his head. A few seconds later, he set it down, commented lazily "Tha's what we call a 'clean press' on eighty pounds."

Chapman, we are given to understand, can easily do the same trick with 100 lb. weights any day in the week except Thursday. Why Thursday should be his "off night," even the instructor could not explain. "It just seems to happen that way."

Although preparing for his comprehensive examinations in economics, and putting in most of his afternoons on the board track, Don manages to find a few moments after ten o'clock at night to devote to his "classes." Night after night his gymnasium becomes a sanctuary for the broken of spirit and body. "I give 'em a new outlook on life," Chapman explains. "We get as many as eighteen and nineteen here a night. Right now we are featuring the 'Building of Bulky Biceps.'

Solarium

"We are also conducting a solarium," interposed Chapman. "On the roof, following the afternoon workouts, the boys sun themselves for awhile, and soon acquire a smooth, even Green Mountain tan."

Unlike many another gym instructor, Chapman has never had a sick day in his life, and has always been naturally healthy. Regular exercise, he goes on to say, is probably responsible for whatever he has that everyone else is trying to get in his gymnasium, if you see what we mean. His newly-acquired nick-name, "for business purposes only," is "Adonis," and it fits him perfectly. But Chapman is amazingly modest about it all. He prefers not to talk about it, would rather tell you about the new health-building equipment he is expecting "any day now." He denies flatly that a certain East Orange (N. J.) Ladies Sewing group wanted to raffle him off last Thanksgiving Day, instead of the usual turkeys.

Triumph Over Rival

Chapman's greatest triumph was over his rival, Tommy Bennett, who attempted to start a similar gym over in Gifford hall. "Bennett might as well admit it. He's washed up," said Don, with pardonable pride.

Asked where he thought Bennett made his greatest mistake, Chapman stated unhesitatingly, "It was in that rowing machine. The rowing machine, I have found, is passé. What the gymnasium of today needs is a bar-bell."

Of all his pupils, Don reserves his praises for one, whose name, unfortunately, must not appear here. It would not be "ethical." At any rate, Chapman claims that with this one pupil, his protegee, he literally "started out with nothing," and honestly thinks his man is the "white hope to beat Louis."

Library Given Photostatic Copy Of Original Plans Of Old Chapel

Building Ideas Conceived By Joshua Bates Are Found

By James B. Nourse '43

Recent discovery of a photostatic copy of the original plans for Old Chapel brought to light an interesting story regarding the old college building, which is presently undergoing another renovation.

This copy, along with a copy of the accompanying letter from the hand of President Joshua Bates, designer of the plans, are now in possession of Mr. Wyman Parker, college librarian. The plans, as offered, are so different from the present building design, that one could easily find reason to call them plans for Starr hall.

Old Letter Discovered

The year the letter was written was 1834. It was addressed to Mr. Laomi Baldwin, Esq., Charlestown, Mass., and the purpose of writing it was to find council from a man apparently well acquainted with architecture on the design as offered by the then president of Middlebury College. The letter opens in the following manner: "I send you a sketch of a plan for a College building, which we are about to erect. The plan is my own, but you know, I have no skill as an artist, and not much taste in architecture."

Had the plans been followed through, Old Chapel, instead of having the short side of its rectangular shape as the front, would have had its broad side, as is true of Starr. There would have been two stairways rather than the one at the front, though they would have looked like the present one. From these entrances there were to be corridors reaching to the back of the building.

Basement Plans

On the basement floor, Dr. Bates intended to have four large class rooms located between the two corridors and extending from the front of the edifice to the rear. On the north and south sides of the corridors were to be similar rooms: a section recitation room, a store room, and another section recitation room, thus giving a well balanced floor.

The first floor called for a huge chapel running the length of the building and reaching up two stories. It was to be bounded on either side by two corridors, directly above the two on the basement floor. As one entered the chapel, one would walk under a balcony that stretched across only that end. At the further end of the hall was a pulpit. In reality it would not have been much different from the present large room.

Besides the chapel there were to be a chemical lecture room and a laboratory, both on the north side, and a philosophical lecture room and laboratory on the south end.

The second floor would have been largely made up of the chapel, with its balcony, but there were also rooms for the mineralogical department, philological department, and the offices.

At that time, it was decided to put the college library on the third floor, making it easily accessible to all. Located on the front side of the building, directly above the chapel, it was to run the distance between the two corridors.

Similiar Appearance, Location

Separating the library from the Students Society Library was a staircase leading to a cupola, which was to be located directly in the center of the roof. Wrote Dr. Bates in his letter: "Can a cupola for bell and observatory be well supported in the center? and what should be its size and height? Will a plain roof, tinned, correspond it?"

Regarding the location of the building, he wrote: "Our ground is elevated . . . One building of stone for students 4 stories has been erected. It is proposed to place this in line with it, about 100 feet distant; expecting to place another on the opposite wing hereafter. They will all be found on a rock, as there is a ledge, within (six) 6 feet of the surface. The stone is primitive limestone. . . the front may be of dark colour, capable of being laid in regular courses. . . the other sides of less expensive stone and irregular."

The present building is a far cry from the ideas conceived by the College's third president, but the plans are a living monument to the aspirations and interests cherished by one of the early founders of this small New England college.

Assembly Meeting Held Last Sunday

Revision of Mountain Club Constitution Sanctioned At Next to Last Meeting

Norman W. Hatfield '41, speaker of the Men's Assembly, called into executive session the next to final meeting of this student governing body last Sunday evening.

Speaking under the heading of committee reports, William J. Bursaw '41, chairman of the student organizations committee, asked the assembly's approval on a set of proposed changes relating to the constitution of the Mountain club. Members ratified the revisions by a show-of-hands vote.

Dormitory Proctor Revisions

A second set of proposed revisions dealing with the improvement of the present proctor system was then advanced by Thomas H. Bennett '41, chairman of the dormitory committee. Previous discussion had necessitated consultation with the dean's office and with certain faculty members.

First item under the consideration of old business was the resolution by William R. Markland '41 asking for the institution of yearly student physical examinations with necessary funds to be appropriated from the present general hospitalization fee.

Report on Conference

A comprehensive report on the meeting of the National Conference for Democracy in Education society held at Harvard university on March 29-30 was given by Peter J. Nikitas '43. In answer to the charge by a number of newspapers that the organization had definite Communistic leanings, Nikitas stressed the fact that, in his opinion, the charges were entirely false.

Malcolm Freiberg '41 acting under the heading of new business, proposed a resolution calling for the revocation of the charter of the English club. Freiberg charged that the club had been inactive for some four years, that it was not fulfilling its purpose, and that it was rapidly being succeeded by the more virile Middlebury Literary club. His proposal was tabled for further discussion at the next meeting.

A proposal that the editorship of the Kaleidoscope be extended to the women's college was advanced by Lester W. Ingalls, Jr. '41. Ingalls stated that the increased interest on the part of the women's campus justified the extension of the competition.

Nominees For Women's Forum Officers Released

Nominations for the officers of the Women's Forum for the 1941-1942 year have been released and will be voted upon at a meeting of the organization at an as yet undecided time.

The names are as follows: president, Margaret A. Fell '42, Leonore W. Pockman '42 and Barbara York '42; program chairman, Marcia Saunders '42, and the two defeated candidates for president; vice-president, Nancy L. Cowgill '43, S. Carol Hartman '43 and Donna R. Rogers '43; social service chairman, Helen M. Bouck '43, Barbara B. Higham '43 and Carolyn C. Stanwood '43; treasurer, June M. Archibald '43, Margaret Dounce '43 and Margaret K. Ferry '43; secretary, Louise V. Cosenza '44, M. Ruth Green '44 and Ingrid H. Monk '44.

TWENTY MEN AND WOMEN CHOSEN AS MEMBERS ON NEW TEMPORARY SKYLINE

Last Friday afternoon ten men and ten women were elected from the freshman class to temporary membership on the Skyline of the Mountain club. These selections were made from a group of thirty-six candidates.

The men chosen were Ralph S. Crawshaw '43, and the following freshmen: Alfred G. Boissevain, David S. Cassedy, Paul E. Crocker, Robert P. Darrow, Edgar J. Huizer, Emory P. Mersereau, Michael McClintock, John W. Schaller, and Frederick B. Walker.

Selected from the group of women candidates were Abbie-Dora Ansel, Helen A. Beardslee, Jeanne Chatfield, Dorothy A. Hayes, Gertrude Nightingale, Helen C. Perrins, Janet Pflug, Polly Powers, Irene B. Ruthenberg, and Ruth R. Wheaton.

From this group of twenty temporary members six men and six women will be chosen next fall as permanent members of the Skyline. These will be selected on the basis of the quality of their work shown during the remainder of this year. Election to temporary membership followed a period of training in the duties of membership. Outstanding among these was a course in first aid given by Augustin A. Root '42.

Certain changes in the club constitution in regard to rewording and personnel have been proposed by the governing board and will be acted upon soon by the Men's Assembly and the Student Union.

THIRTY COLLEGES REPRESENTED AT CPT CONFERENCE

Prof. John G. Bowker returned Sunday from a meeting of the Civil Pilot Training co-ordinators which was held during Friday and Saturday at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York city.

At this meeting there were thirty other co-ordinators from colleges participating in the program in Region I. This area includes the eastern seaboard as far south as Virginia and the New England colleges represented from this district were: Middlebury, Norwich, University of Maine, Bowdoin, Tufts, Providence, Northeastern, and Rhode Island State.

An executive committee of eight members was elected to deal with problems arising between now and the next meeting. This group will contact Washington in an effort to try to coordinate the college academic work more nearly with the Civil Aeronautics Authority requirements. Some of the problems discussed at the meeting were: ground school finances, the C. P. T. medical examinations, college credits for the flying course work, and closer cooperation between the Washington authorities and the local coordinators.

Baseball Team Makes Debut Against Trinity

Springfield and Wesleyan Face Panthers Too During Trip

COACH ANNOUNCES TENTATIVE LINE-UP

Coach "Red" Kelley's spring baseball offensive will be launched tomorrow afternoon at Hartford, Connecticut, when the untried Middlebury nine takes the field agaisst Trinity college. A squad of fourteen men departed this afternoon for Springfield, Massachusetts, which will be the team's headquarters for its three-game trip. The schedule, calling for three games in as many days, finds Springfield as Friday's opposition, and Wesleyan to be tackled on Saturday. (However, Jupiter Pluvius, in cahoots with the weatherman, may prove to be a more formidable competitor than any of these.)

VanGaasbeck To Pitch

The battery for Middlebury in the opener against Trinity will find Harry VanGaasbeck assuming the pitching duties, while Sike Arnold gets the call for the catching assignment. Their infield support will include two newcomers, Hal Skinner at second and Tom Turner at third. The shortstop position will be covered by Whitey Hawes, while Big Ed Yeomans has first base to guard. Prukop, Shea, and Eakeley form a veteran outfield which will be expected to produce the base hits. Sammy Bertuzzi has been taken from right field to be converted into a pitcher. He will probably start on the mound against Springfield. Two freshman hurlers, Dick Day and George Wiemann, who also plays first base, round out the pitching staff for this trip. Tommy Cruess, another freshman, is making the trip as a reserve catcher.

Proposed Line-up

Prukop,	r. f.
Shea,	c. f.
VanGaasbeck,	p.
Yeomans,	1b.
Arnold,	c.
Bertuzzi,	l. f.
Hawes,	s. s.
Turner,	3 b.
Skinner,	2 b.

A hard-hitting Trinity outfit was able to tally thirty seven runs in winning the first three games of its Southern tour. The victims of this hitting barrage were Swarthmore, Haverford, and Western Maryland. More recently, they were beaten by a smooth-working Rutgers nine by a 7 to 2 score.

Springfield appears to have some strength in her pitching department if their 2 to 1 victory over Trinity in a practice game is any indication. In view of Trinity's early season accomplishments, this would seem to be quite a feat.

Wesleyan is another New England ball club which has had the advantages of limbering up under a Virginia sun. But they also found tough competition down there. Both Randolph-Macon and University of Richmond took over the Wesleyan team by rather top-heavy scores. So they'll be on the rebound, hungry for a northern victory.

Oh no, not that, not at all,
Just hear those Red Hook shouts!

I'm not saying Midd's the same
We're in a different league,
Here's the question that I raise—
Are our rooters just as big?

Now here's the moral of my pome,
Boys remember while at Midd,
We may not always win the game,
But just think—once we did!

Baseball season now begins,
Our nation's greatest sport,
Help the team turn games to wins,
Give them swell support!

"IFS"

We realize that the above may be a trifle out of place since Coach Kelley's forces are performing far afield—but honestly — who could resist so fondly foolish a subject as the "Wait-til-next-year!" Brooklyn Dodgers?

But still there is no reason why the message may not be applied to the Union-Middlebury track meet which will take place this Saturday afternoon on Porter field. Certainly this will present the opportunity to give vent to all those pent-up cheers, which have been stored since before spring vacation.

Then too, it will be of interest to see just how much early season practice will help a Middlebury athletic team. Will this help Captain Jack Hicks—will he be able to perform to the best of his ability? Will Stebbins live up to the pre-season promise he has shown in the mile run? Will Holly Hollister and Lynn Sackett prove their abilities in actual competition? Will Marty Wittlin and Johnny Zydik improve their merits in the shot put and javelin throw? Will Jack Lundrigan, Tommy Rooney, Fred Hawkes and Bing Byington be able to duplicate the fine performances of Royce Tabor '40 in the high jump?

There are a lot of questions to be answered, a lot of "ifs" to be put to test, there are numerous freshmen taking part in their first varsity tarck meet—all of these factors add to the usual interest of Middlebury's opening track meet.

SMALL TALK

For years Middlebury students have been demanding a new gymnasium, for just as many years the CAMPUS sports editor has been doing the same. But now that is a thing of the past.

Yes chillun—Middlebury has its new gymnasium — featuring lessons in weight lifting, plus various other forms of body building. So great has the success of this new health emporium been, that it has been one of the many decided factors in the termination of the annual spring football training—(or so its proprietor claims).

So we invite you one and all to hurry up to the fifth floor of Hepburn and grab yourself a new life and a healthier body. Chests by Chapman, Biceps by Blondie, Euphoria by Eugene—take it any way you like, exercising in Chapman's Gym makes for the "mens sana in corpore sano". AND I KNOW WHAT IT MEANS!

SMALLER TALK

A fair young lass of the Junior class upped to me a while back and in pretty indignation demanded that I do something about the lack of tennis facilities.

Do something about it? My dear young lady, can I help it if the men's tennis team utilizes all the courts in the afternoon for their very necessary practices? Can I help it if the college baseball diamond also needed reconditioning this spring, and thus postponed fair treatment of the clay courts? Can I help it if construction on the proposed courts has not been completed?

No! But it would be nice if something were done—wouldn't it?

Midd Golfers Show Promise During Drills

Facing their first match of the year less than three weeks away, the college golf team has been taking advantage of the favorable weather by daily practice on the links at the Middlebury golf club.

Usually stymied by soggy soil at the links, the team has been able to get in a great deal more practice than in previous years. Coach Beck hopes to take the boys down to the Rutland Country Club about April 26th for an intensive practice round which will do much towards determining which men will win starting positions on the team. With all the pre-season advantages, and a well-rounded group of men, prospects for a good year look exceptionally fine for 1941.

Chapman No. 1

Captain Don Chapman, for three years one of the mainstays of the varsity, will probably hold down the number one spot. Other veterans are Dixie Davis, Larry Mahar, and Duke Diefendorf and these men will fight it out for the second, third and fourth positions. Then too, Coach Beck can look to Mose Hubbard and Sandy Young for able support—both men having much experience in the golfing world. Fred Williams and Hal Parker are also out there practicing and they too, are given an equal chance of making the starting line-up.

The schedule is as follows: April 29—Union (away); April 30—Colgate (away); May 10—Middlebury Country Club (here); May 13—Colby (here); May 14—Union (here); May 19—Norwich (away); May 21—Norwich (here); May 24—Rutland Country Club (away—pending).

Tennis Squad Scheduled To Meet Amherst

Coach Cornwall is working against time to whip a winning tennis team into shape for its first match of the year against Amherst, which is only a little over a week away. The boys will oppose the Lord Jeffs on April 25th, and on the next day a match is scheduled with Wesleyan.

Led by Captain Jack Crawford, a group of sixteen men reported for practice when the call was given a week ago last Saturday for tennis candidates. Included in this number were three veterans, Lew Haines, Tom Macdonald, and Bob Maxwell. Although there are many other promising candidates who are striving to win positions on the team, Coach Cornwall will naturally build his 1941 team around these men.

Round-Robin Tourney

Because of the shortage of time before the first match, it has been necessary to base the selection of the new men on the results of a round-robin tournament which is now being played. Upon the completion of this competition, those men who finish at the top may challenge Crawford, Haines, Macdonald and Maxwell, and in this way the newcomers are given the opportunity to displace any of the veterans, if their talents merit such a step. The tournament has not been completed as yet, and therefore it is still unknown who will be the likely starters. However, this round-robin system has met with success in the past, and there is no doubt that Coach Cornwall will pick out the most outstanding players.

Another factor which will aid the coach in determining his starters will be the clay courts, which up to this time have not been available for use. The faster surface which is characteristic of these dirt courts will be a further test of those men who have been practising on the slower macadam surface,

Prior to the match with Amherst, a more limited tournament will be held to determine just what position each of the few top men will hold in competition. Up to this time Coach Cornwall has been counting on the four veterans to fill the first four positions, with Captain Crawford filling the bill as number one singles player.

Trackmen Meet Union Saturday

Well-Balanced Team Ready For First Big Test Of '41 Season

TEAM ANNOUNCED FOLLOWING TRIALS

The 1941 edition of the Middlebury track team will start its season this Saturday, April 19th, in a dual meet with Union college—field events starting at Porter field at 1:30, and the track events at 2:30. Union is expected to have a fairly strong team, and this year's meet will present the opportunity to compare the relative merits of the two teams which was lost last year due to postponement.

Time trials were held last Friday and Saturday, to determine who would compete. The times were rather slow, probably because the track men are unaccustomed to the cinders after working out on the board track until about a week ago. The hurdles times were the best, with the distance times quite slow.

Starters Named

The following are the men who will probably start the Union meet—the first three are fairly certain of starting positions, while the other posts are not definite. In the 100—Hicks, Hollister and Sackett; in the 220—the same trio of sprinters; the quarter mile will be run by Butler, Howie Schlieder and Bob Gale; in the 880—Butler, Schlieder, Morehouse, and possibly Hartz, Backup and Fred Hawkes; Stebbins, Hartz, Cosgrove and perhaps Booth will represent Midd in the mile; while the 2 mile burden will be carried by Parker, Egbert, Kinsey and Stetson. There will be only two entries in each of the hurdle events, Bill Wood and Rasmussen in the highs, and Rasmusssen and Jack Bates in the lows. The high jumpers will be Lundrigan, Rooney, Fred Hawkes and Byington; and the broad jumpers, Bursaw, Lundrigan, Rooney, Bill Hawkes and Jack Bates. Trask and Paul Davis will do the pole vaulting. In the field events, Wittlin, John Gale and Hollister will represent Midd in the shot put; the discus men wil be Ferren, Wittlin, Reuman, Zydik and possibly John Gale, Van de Water and Boissevain; and finally, in the javelin throw, Zydik, Dave Smith, Ferren, and perhaps Skip Harris, John Gale, Parker and Boissevain.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE VETOED BY COACH

As a result of an interview with Coach Kelley it has been found that a proposed soft-ball league would be inadvisable.

There has been a great deal of comment by members of the undergraduate body concerning the possibility of such a league being formed for the coming intramural competition. It is the general opinion that in this manner every team would have a fairer chance of being among the top positions at the close of the season. The reason for this conclusion is that it is felt that by a league the chance would be cancelled of being eliminated at the very beginning by a stronger team and having no other opportunities to prove their worth and perhaps end the season in a runner-up position.

This protest against the elimination method of playoff quite evidently has come up in previous years and has received due consideration from those powers who be. The fact still remains, however, plain and simple, that there would not be time enough to run them in any other manner than the way in which they are scheduled. Coming as they do in late season, due to the possibility of their interfering with other major sports, the time needed to play off the number of games that a league would necessitate playing, could not be found.

It has been suggested that a team could play more than one game a day, once in the afternoon and once in a proposed "Twilight League" after the supper hour

Yeomans And Maxwell Elected Heads Of Co-op Buying Society

Edward H. Yeomans '42 was chosen president and Robert S. Maxwell '42 business manager of the Middlebury Co-operative Buying society for the coming year as a result of the elections held yesterday.

Serving on the executive council will be John S. Gale '43 and Charles R. Gordon '43. These newly elected officers replace Robert L. Johnson '41, former president, William J. Bursaw, former business manager, and Maxwell and Yeomans, who served as the executive council during the past year.

At the present time a plan to place the regular large orders of this organization as soon as possible is being considered. Such a proposal has been made due to the expected increase in prices because of large government orders being made.

This co-operative society was organized in 1938 for the purpose of bargaining collectively for staple foodstuffs. During the past three years it has increased its membership to six of the campus fraternities.

WAGNER MUSIC PLAYED

Selections from Work "Parsifal" Featured in Recital Friday

Recorded selections from Wagner's consecrational opera, "Parsifal", were presented under the sponsorship of the music department in Mead chapel on last Friday evening at 8:00 p. m.

Programs for the entertainment were distributed to those of the faculty and student body who attended as they entered the chapel. Included on the programs were a summary of the opera and short descriptions of each of the six selections to be played. In the two cases where there were vocal refrains, the text was reproduced in German as sung and an English translation was also included.

There were no introductions or announcements, and the program continued without interruption except for the pauses between selections. The victrola was concealed behind the rostrum, so that only the loud speaker was visible to the audience. Warren J. Hassmer '43 was in charge of the records.

Women Debate with Two Maine Colleges on Trip

Members of the women's debating team returned last Friday from a three day Maine trip where they competed with teams from Colby college and the University of Maine.

Both contests were non-decision debates, and both times Middlebury upheld the affirmative side of the popular question, "Resolved: That the nations of the Western hemisphere should form a permanent union."

Ruth Hardy '41 and Alice J. Austin '42 represented Middlebury in the debate with Colby college at Waterville. Miss Hardy with Helen L. West '41 upheld the affirmative of this question for Middlebury in the contest with the University of Maine women at Orono.

Vernon S. Andrews, of Physics Department, Takes Defense Job

Vernon S. Andrews, formerly assistant in the college physics department, has left his position here to take one under the national defense expansion program of the Atlas Powder company.

Mr. Andrews left Middlebury on last Friday to undertake an eight week training course in the general laboratories of this company. Following this required laboratory training period, Mr. Andrews will be eventually located in Ohio.

MENDEL TO READ FROM "OUR TOWN" NEXT WEDNESDAY

Dramatic monologues of scenes from Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" will be presented by Douglas H. Mendel '42 at the meeting of the Literary club on next Wednesday, April 23. All the parts in these sketches will be taken by Mendel, who has had experience in monologue work and is a dramatics major here.

Last Wednesday night, the ninth meeting of the organization was held in the living room of Pearson's hall. Discussion, centering about certain modern British and American poets and poetic criticism in general, was led by Peter J. Stanlis '42, president of the club.

In discussing the various poems, a definite attempt was made to avoid a minutely analytical approach to them, and to place more emphasis upon the aesthetic attitude rather than the meaning alone. First and most improtant to be considered was T. S. Eliot's "'Sweeney Among the Nightingales;" the other selections were one of A. E. Housman's lyrics from "A Shropshire Lad," Shelley's "Ozymandias," Oscar Wilde's "Symphony in Yellow," and "A Nun Takes the Veil" by Gerard Manley Hopkins.

Metropolitan Soprano Will Sing on July 23 At Breadloaf Theatre

Mme. Elisabeth Schumann will sing in the Little Theatre at Breadloaf on July 23, according to an announcement by Prof. Harry G. Owen, dean of the Breadloaf School of English.

Madame Schumann is one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan and Vienna opera companies. She also sang with Richard Strauss on his tour of this country. Mme. Lotte Lehmann, a leading Wagnerian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, praised Madame Schumann highly in an article in the New York Times for March 23. Concerning this concert singer she said:

"Perhaps Elisabeth Schumann is today the singer who best represents the style of Lieder singing in its purest form. In crystal clarity her Lieder soars as in the cloudless blue of the heavens."
